

1099 Agent - Corporate Email Usage Policy

Policy brief & purpose

Our corporate email usage policy helps 1099 agents use their company email addresses appropriately. Email is essential to our everyday jobs. We want to ensure that our 1099 agents understand the limitations of using their corporate email accounts.

Our goal is to protect our confidential data from breaches and safeguard our reputation and technological property.

Scope

This policy applies to all agents, vendors and partners who are assigned (or given access to) a corporate email. This email may be assigned to an individual (e.g. employee.name@companydomain) or department (e.g. hr@companydomain.com.)

Policy elements

Corporate emails are powerful tools that help agents in their jobs. 1099 agents should use their company email primarily for work-related purposes. However, we want to provide agents with some freedom to use their emails for personal reasons.

We will define what constitutes appropriate and inappropriate use.

Inappropriate use of company email

Our 1099 agents represent our company whenever they use their corporate email address. They must not:

- Sign up for illegal, unreliable, disreputable or suspect websites and services.
- Send unauthorized marketing content or solicitation emails.
- Register for a competitor's services unless authorized.
- Send insulting or discriminatory messages and content.
- Intentionally spam other people's emails, including their coworkers.

Our company has the right to monitor and archive corporate emails.

Appropriate use of corporate email

1099 Agents are allowed to use their corporate email for work-related purposes without limitations. For example, agents can use their email to:

- Communicate with current or prospective customers and partners.
- Log in to purchased software they have legitimate access to.
- Give their email address to people they meet at conferences, career fairs or other corporate events for business purposes.
- Sign up for newsletters, platforms and other online services that will help them with their jobs or professional growth.

Personal use

1099 Agents are allowed to use their corporate email for some personal reasons. For example, agents can use their corporate email to:

- Register for classes or meetups.
- Send emails to friends and family as long as they don't spam or disclose confidential information.
- Download ebooks, guides and other content for their personal use as long as it is safe and appropriate.

Agents must adhere to this policy at all times, in addition to our confidentiality and data protection guidelines.

Email security

Email is often the medium of hacker attacks, confidentiality breaches, viruses and other malware. These issues can compromise our reputation, legality and security of our equipment.

1099 Agents must:

- Select strong passwords with at least eight characters (capital and lower-case letters, symbols and numbers) without using personal information (e.g. birthdays.)
- Remember passwords instead of writing them down and keep them secret.
- Change their email password every two months.

Also, agents should always be vigilant to catch emails that carry malware or phishing attempts. We instruct employees to:

- Avoid opening attachments and clicking on links when content is not adequately explained (e.g. "Watch this video, it's amazing.")
- Be suspicious of clickbait titles.

- Check email and names of unknown senders to ensure they are legitimate.
- Look for inconsistencies or style red flags (e.g. grammar mistakes, capital letters, excessive number of exclamation marks.)
- Verify email matches senders name.

If an agent isn't sure that an email they received is safe, they can ask our [VPO]

We remind our agents to keep their anti-malware programs updated.
